HE FELL FOUR STORIES.

Little Philip Blumfelt Thrown Through a Window.

Three-year-old Philip Blumfelt this morning fell from the fourth story window of his parents' residence, 129 Monroe street, into the cellar.

He received injuries from which he died before an ambulance arrived.

The boy was playing on a spring bed which stood by the window. As he jumped up and down he shouted with glee. Suddenly he lost his balance and the force of the spring threw him through the window.

Police Supt. Brown Was Resigned.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 28.—Superintendent of Police William H. Brown has written his resignation, which will be presented to Mayor Hague as soon as the latter returns to the city next week.

C. P. Huntington Denies that El Cid Is Sold.

When the sun rose this morning the Stars and Stripes were not hoisted as usual from the flagstaff on the stern of the steamship El Cid. She is no longer an American ship, but has passed into the hands of the Brazilian Government. There was no longer any pretense of keeping this fact a secret aboard the crack steamship.

All hands were busy discussing her future mission against Admiral Meilo and his rebel fleet.

There was no formal transfer of El Cid from the Morgan line to the new owners, but she passed into the hands of the Brazilians as soon as the last vestige of cargo was removed from her spacious hold. A Morgan line watchman, however, was placed aboard last night, and this morning under direction of Capt. Bardsley, the Morgan line stock superintendent, the decks were washed and her hold thoroughly cleaned.

The representative of the Brazilian Government found her this morning as clean as above and below decks as the day she was launched.

Capt. J. P. Baker, who has superseded Capt. Hawthorne in command of the El Cid, is a guest of the Admiral Mariz of the Brazilian Navy, who is believed to have conducted the negotiation with Charles F. Flint & Co. to sell the ship for purchase large quantities of arms and ammunition, as well as a butchery, a distillery, a sawmill and a sugar plantation.

Mr. Burt, manager of the now defunct United States and Brazilian Steamship Company.

Capt. Hawthorne, who is still in the service of the Morgan line, although at present without a ship, left El Cid just before 10 o'clock in company with the agent of the line, J. P. Van Sickle, Chief Engineer J. B. Miller remained aboard. He has not decided whether or not he will remain in that capacity under Brazilian ownership. He says he doesn't want to go to Brazil.

Why should I? I am not an adventurous man, and my family are here, and there is no need of my making any more adventures. I am not a man to go to a pretty high indifference to me to go.

Several engineers called on him aboard El Cid to apply for positions this morning. To one of them Mr. Miller said: "I don't know what to do. I remain on El Cid as yet. In case I do I shall remain my old friend of assistants. In case I do not, there is no need of my saying that I have better call again."

Capt. Baker was reticent when questioned as to the future of the ship. Others aboard were more willing to talk.

At 11 o'clock El Cid was towed to the Erie Basin, where she will be hoisted into the dry dock and ready for sale. She will be docked this afternoon, but it is thought that she will have to remain aloft until Monday, after being overhauled below the water line, she will be taken to the docks of the Morgan line, where the foot of East Ninth street, East River. There she will be armed and all necessary alterations made. The naval warfare will be made. It is said that her armament has not been decided upon.

It has been said that she will be armed with a fifteen-inch dynamite gun and that 100 projectiles loaded with the propellant have already been purchased. This dynamite gun, it is said, weighs forty tons, and it has been said that the projectile is smaller in diameter than the bore of the gun itself.

The dynamite gun is said to have a range of nearly three and three-quarter miles, with a six-inch shell, carrying fifty pounds of explosive, and a three-quarter mile, or two and one-half miles with an eight-inch shell, two miles with a ten-inch shell, and a three-quarter mile of full caliber. The external diameter of the last-named is fifteen inches, and its carrying capacity is more than five hundred pounds.

One of the new crew of El Cid came aboard this morning. It is now thought doubtful if the ship will be ready to leave port.

It is rumored that the Brazilian Government has also purchased El Rio, another Morgan line steamship, which is built on practically the same lines as El Cid. El Rio is now bound from New Orleans to this city and is due here next Tuesday.

Mr. C. P. Huntington, President of the Southern Pacific Company, which owns the Morgan line, said to an "Evening World" reporter that he was not a truth in the report. He also denied that any negotiations for the purchase of El Rio were pending.

WILL ISSUE $550,000 IN BONDS.

Jersey City Wants Money to Complete Its City Hall.

The Jersey City Board of Finance has decided to issue $550,000 worth of 5 per cent. gold bonds for money to build the proposed new City Hall, upon which no work has been done in eight months because of the failure to float the city's bonds.

An attempt to sell $700,000 worth of bonds early in September to raise funds to meet maturing bonds failed, but four weeks later a second effort was successful, and the Commissioners now believe they will have no trouble in disposing of the City Hall bonds.

Two hundred thousand dollars of the bonds are to be paid in yearly installments of $2,000 each, and $50,000 worth will mature on Oct. 1, 1923. The bonds will not be sold for less than par with accrued interest. The date of the sale was not fixed. The contract for the City Hall will be awarded immediately after the sale.

Bosbrink Given "Knocker-Out," Beaten and Robbed.

A bold robbery, in which the "knocker-out" drug was used, was reported this morning in Brooklyn.

The victim was George Bosbrink, who keeps a saloon at Van Sicken avenue and Fulton street. About 1 o'clock this morning three young men went into Bosbrink's place. After drinking together they invited him to join them.

When several rounds had been disposed of Bosbrink became oblivious to the surroundings. He remembers nothing more.

At 4 o'clock his bartender went to open the place and found his employer unconscious on a settee in the saloon, with all the doors locked.

Bosbrink was bleeding profusely from a gash just behind his left ear. There were clots of blood upon the floor in different parts of the saloon.

Bosbrink's diamond pin was gone, together with his gold watch and chain and about $20 which had been stolen from the drawer of the cash register.

He was in a comatose condition to-day. He appeared to have been deeply drugged.

He told very fragmentary stories. He was so incoherent that he could give the police no lucid description of his assailants.

Wolf was arrested on the same charge last Tuesday and discharged, as there was no complaint. Last night he was rearrested on complaint of Albrecht J. Wagner, wine merchant at 146 Third avenue, who said that on Oct. 23 Wolf bought $8 worth of whiskey from him, giving a worthless check for $35 on the Union Square Bank and receiving $27 in change.

Wolf waived examination and was committed to $500 to answer.
